The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

Silence is golden at West Point.

Brattleboro cottons to that new mill project.

F-a-z-z-b-e spells frazzle. Ask the O. G. if 'tain't so.

The defeated "old guard" is now trying to make Taft the scapegoat, as is natural.

Complete returns from every town in Vermont give Myron J. Haggood eleven votes for governor.

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston thinks he performed a public service, as well as great self-sacrifice, by refusing the Massachusetts governorship. And so he did perform a great service for the Massachusetts commonwealth.

The Knosburg Standard may rest assured that the Vermont public service commission law stands well with the people of Vermont and that any attempt to remove the strong features of the act is sure to end disastrously for the parties back of the move.

It looks as if a severe lesson in discipline is needed at the national military academy at West Point, when the grudge of a few cadets can be spread so that it will include the entire corps in a manifestation against one of the officers in charge. The officer in question is said to have questioned the veracity of certain cadets, with the result that the certain cadets won over the sympathetic support of all their fellow-students.

We admire the assurance and commend the enterprise of those Barre, Vermont, granite men, who come into New Hampshire, at the Rochester fair, with an exhibit of the products and possibilities of their quarries.—Concord (N. H.) Monitor.

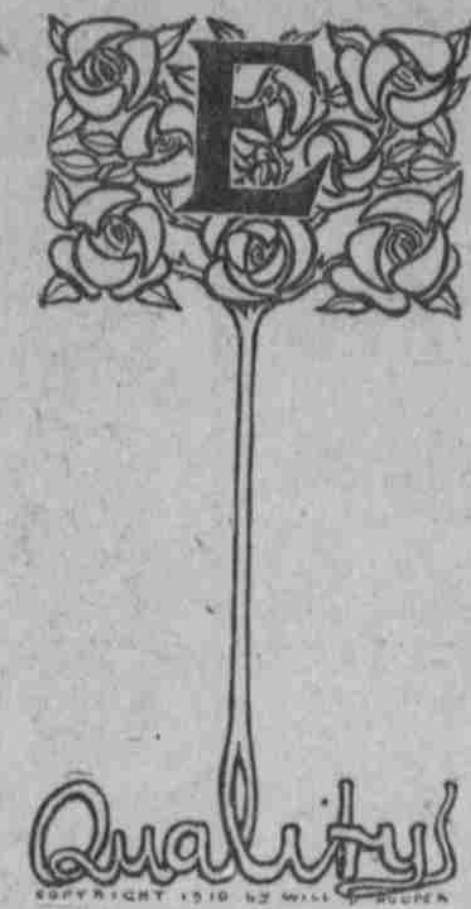

Why shouldn't they exhibit Barre granite in New Hampshire? Though New Hampshire is called the "Granite state," there is more granite to the square inch in Vermont than there is to the mile in New Hampshire. Besides, no kind of New Hampshire granite approaches Barre granite in the finer qualities, not even the chunks which are dug out of Concord's little hill.

What sad times New England women seem to have with collector Loeb.—Boston Herald.

You are too inclusive in that statement. If you had remarked that Boston women were having a sad time of it with the New York collector, you would have hit nearer the truth; and with the inclusion of New Hampshire you would have reached the limit of New England states whose citizens have been caught in the customs net on landing from Europe. Up to the present time, no Vermont women, for instance, have been detected bringing in $1,000 worth of dutiable goods in the lining of their hats or beneath inner soles in their shoes.

THE ROOSEVELT VICTORY AT SARATOGA.

The success of Theodore Roosevelt in winning the chairmanship of the New York state Republican convention, important as it may seem at the present time, is probably but an incident in the progress which he is to make toward the leadership of the national party, after voluntarily relinquishing that leadership following his presidency and during his year's absence in Africa. In order to win the chairmanship, Mr. Roosevelt had to exert a tremendous personal influence, for the "old guard" under Barnes and others had been strengthening their defenses for a year or more in anticipation of the efforts of Roosevelt to gain the ascendancy again. That the former president was able to rally his friends to his support and win by a large majority of votes is a remarkable tribute to that magnetic force which he has displayed in politics for years. Mr. Roosevelt has thus virtually become

Everything for dress for every man for every day and every occasion—everything of the best value for the price and everything can be returned if it fails to give you satisfaction in every particular.

leader of the Republican party in New York.

The announcement of his success will be received with mixed feelings, and taken altogether the feeling of satisfaction will perhaps be in the majority throughout the country. There are plenty of people in the Republican party who distrust Roosevelt's purposes and look askance at his methods; but at the same time they cannot help applauding the overthrow of Barnes and his allies in the New York Republican party, choosing the lesser of two evils. Then there are a great number of people who have implicit confidence in the integrity of Roosevelt and who feel that while his methods are blunt his ends more than make up for the deficiency of the means. To them the victory at Saratoga means decent politics, and they rejoice.

Current Comment

Save the Vt. P. S. C.

Vermont is the only New England state which has not fallen into the grip of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.—Barre Times.

Let us be watchful—very watchful—so that this statement will be as true a year from now as it is to-day.—Rutland News.

Good, sound advice. Signs have been plentiful of corporate activity in connection with legislative matters in Vermont the present year. Particular care should be taken that no one applies the force of the public service commission law.—Enosburg Standard.

Not Encouraging Visitors.

The Reformer does not view with approval the efforts of some town clerks to turn out every automobile owner who comes to Vermont from another state for more than 10 days and make him pay a registration fee. Of course, officials who do this are enforcing the law, but if we give non-resident automobile owners the idea that we are maintaining a detective bureau for the purpose of separating them from their money it will be but a short time before they decide to visit other and less mercenary communities. There is, in fact, considerable doubt about the wisdom of imposing a registration fee upon automobilists who come to this state for a short time. We certainly are not encouraging people from other states to visit us when we require them to pay for the privilege of coming here.—Brattleboro Reformer.

Good Roads.

The esteemed Middlebury Register does not appear to understand some of the details of the good roads tour made by Franklin county lawmakers, elected, under the auspices of the St. Albans board of trade, or it would not have characterized it as it did in the editorial printed elsewhere.

This little expedition was very well equipped with facts and figures of the comparative cost of roads and carried along a perfect arsenal of information of this character ready for consultation at any time.

Nor was this tour taken simply in the interest of automobile owners. It was taken in the interest of all highway traffic, and the automobile is just as much a part of that traffic as the horse and wagon, and will eventually be pretty much all of it, no matter what our genial Middlebury friend may think or say to the contrary.

The serious-minded men that set out upon the Franklin county good roads tour, did not design it "to bamboozle" members of the legislature into supporting a bill, accompanied with great expense, to build roads, not for the benefit of the people of Vermont as a whole, but for the benefit of automobile clubs," etc. "Bamboozle" is a melodious word, but it is off the key.—St. Albans Messenger.

The Direct Primary.

The primary election law has been tried in New Hampshire and has proved a success. It worked so successfully that the only ones who now condemn it are the political bosses, who were overthrown by it.

In every respect it brought about just what was claimed for it. In 1908 a Republican candidate for governor received forty thousand five hundred eighty-one votes; at the recent primary over thirty thousand votes were cast, or about seventy-five per cent. of the vote cast by the party in 1908. In other words, three-fourths of the Republican voters of the state went to the polls and made their preference known.

Under the old caucus system, the expenses of candidates for governor have many times exceeded fifty thousand dollars, and the money so expended has been used for the purchase outright of delegates to the conventions. Under the old system it was a campaign of corruption. Under the direct primary, one candidate spent a little over one thousand dollars and the other candidate a little less than four thousand. Never in the history of the present generation has so little money been expended in New Hampshire to secure a governorship nomination as in the present campaign. Under the new system the campaign has been one of education.

For the first time in the history of the Republican party of that state, the people have expressed their preferences. Heretofore all of the machinery of the party has been in the hands of political bosses, most of whom were under retainers to a big railroad corporation. They manipulated the voters, nominated their own men for executive offices and completely controlled the administration of the state affairs. The primary election law has put an end to that condition.

Every one of the counties of the state gave a majority in favor of the progressive candidate, and the prospects are that both the House and the Senate will be in control of the progressive wing of the party. We commend the experience of New Hampshire with the direct primary to the careful consideration of the members of the general assembly of the state of Vermont for 1910.—Wilmington Times.

STATUE TO GEN. WELLS.

Bronze Memorial to Be Erected On the Battlefield of Gettysburg.

Burlington, Sept. 28.—In response to a petition signed by nearly all of the prominent veterans and others in this state, a location will be granted for a bronze statue in honor of the late General William Wells on the battlefield of Gettysburg. In the latter part of October, or the first part of November, a delegation of the first Vermont cavalry will go to Gettysburg and, with the battlefield monument commission, will decide as to the exact location of the monument.

On the afternoon of July 3, 1863, General Wells led a desperate charge up Round Top, and it is expected that among the men who will confer as to the location of the monument will be some who were on hand that day. The matter of securing locations for monuments on the battlefield is growing more and more difficult, but the secretary of war, in response to the letter circulated through Vermont, referred the matter to the battlefield monument commission, and all that remains to be done before the erection, is the selection of a site. The exact nature of the monument, except that it is to be of bronze, has not been determined, but will be in the near future.

The statue to General Wells will be one of a number erected in honor of soldiers from Vermont who participated in the battle.

Seminary street, to accommodate houses owned by him, and the request was granted. A permit was granted to the Modern Woodmen to hang a sign over the entrance to the Howland block during the days of their fair.

The long-looked-for deed from the Central Vermont railroad on an exchange of property with the city by reason of the river-bed change was received. A proposed deed of a strip of land adjoining the old Orange brook reservoir, owned by Ernest A. and Emma J. Cutler, was read and approved, the city to pay $250 for the land.

The city attorney and city engineer, to whom had been referred the bill of $601.23 from Joseph Long & company for extra work on the new Orange brook reservoir, reported that when the bill was presented the first time by Long & company the city engineer refused to accept it, claiming that under the terms of the contract it did not belong to the city to pay, and they could see no reason now for changing that decision. On motion of Alderman Rossi, the report was accepted. A resolution appropriating $12,975.93 to the changing of the river-bed account was read a second time and adopted.
